Christina Gantini is a lecturer in Contemporary Architectural Criticism at the Bandung Institute of Technology. She is a member of the Group for the Study of Architectural History, Theory, and Criticism in the School of Architecture, Planning, and Policy Development. Gantini is participating in studies of modern and vernacular architecture. Her interest stems from his childhood in Bali, where she spent a lot of time in small towns, as well as being heavily involved with traditional village communities. The goal is to combine contemporary architecture with the concept of location, in particular the theory and techniques for creating places.

Her research interests are subjects in Balinese architecture, Vernacular Architecture, History and Theory Architecture, Architecture, and Commodification.
